Ski Enthusiasts Have Last Trip of Season

Eugene, Oregon, June-July, 1940

Skiing and sunburn, to say nothing of a climb of the Middle Sister, made the annual skiptrip to Sunshine Shelter a memorable event for the 12 Obsidians who made the trip. The group left Frog camp about 4:15 a. m., and found the skiing in to Sunshine Shelter excellent. They arrived at Sunshine at 7:30 and started the climb of the Middle Sisternot originally scheduled for the trip-at 8:15 a.m. Most of the group reached the summit about 1:30 p. m., although several members of the party were on top by 12:30.

Work on New Cabin Mean Completion

The week-end of April 20-21 was a busy one for Obsidians. After playing hard at the Adagio party, they were "up and at it" early next morning.

The old cabins were stripped of stoves, windows, gas lighting system, doors, tiling, loose lumber, and piano.

Much credit is due to Leo Paschelke for bringing his truck from Marcola and making the two trips necessary to move these effects.

A lean-to addition was put onto the original cabin at Belknap to serve as a kitchen: and considerable cleaning up and painting was done throughout the interior.

The ladies powder room was new cabin and pronounced in working order.

The ladies were proved to be good carpenters. They were on the roof putting on shingles and most of the time hitting the nail on the head.

Advice to Tenderfeet

Tenderfoots will have their annual chance to harden up the little tootsies, come July, on the long, long slopes of the Middle or the even longer slopes of the South Sisters. Neither the exact date nor the mountain has been decided on as yet, but it's not too soon to begin thinking about equipment, and taking short weekend climbs in preparation.

Tenderfoot climbs are always a lot of fun--new contacts, new people, the delight of discovering the Big Mountains and being able to call yourself a "mountain climber" and talk about crevasses and bergsrunds and moraines.

The local walks committee wants us to state, in the strongest possible terms, that absolutely no one will be allowed to climb in tennis shoes. Hobnailed boots are ESSENTIAL.

Adagio Party Held At New Cabins

Obsidians had an evening of dancing, singing and a general good time in late April, when the entertainment committee planned a party at the Belknap cabins. The "adagio" theme was carried out in the red checked tablecloths, and in the pictures decorating the walls.

Chester Pietka played the ac-cordion and Bob Wilson led the singing. At refreshment time. Bertha Deckmann was presented with a birthday cake in honor of her birthday.

Silver Creek Falls Visited In Mav

One of western Oregon's most beautiful scenic spots, Silver Creek Falls state park, was the destination of the May 26 trip. About 27 Obsidians were on the trip. After the hike through the park, where camera enthusiasts took pictures of the falls, the group returned to the picnic grounds for lunch.

To Sutton Lake forest camp, near Florence, went about 35 Obsidians for a week-end May 25 and 26. Most of the party spent the night at the forest camp. THE CAMP

The 1940 Obsidian summer camp will be held from August 4th to 18th, at Horseshoe Lake in the Wallowa mountains.
